Dear Boys and Girls,

There was once a time when any seventeen year old could predict with a reasonable degree of certainty what his life would be like ten, twenty or even fifty years later. This was somewhat true in your grandfather's generation and even when your parents were your age; it is no longer true today. Who can be certain today what the results will be of the inventions, the medical research, the space exploration that lie ahead? Who knows what changes will take place in terms of jobs or leisure time or family life?

There are a few adventurous souls who find this exciting and exhilarating. There are many more who find it easier to accept any happening rather than think about it. But for most of us, there is a desire to plan our work and our lives with some assurance as to the future.

If we fight change, we will be acting as did the workers in the early days of the Industrial Revolution who destroyed the machines that they thought would take away their jobs—a practice, incidentally, that still exists today even though in other forms.

The future holds every promise of better jobs and ever higher incomes with all that this means for a happy life if we can take advantage of the changes to come. I know of only one way to prepare for this and that is through increased and never-ending education. A college training can be of tremendous value, but it is not indispensable where so many other opportunities for self-education exist.

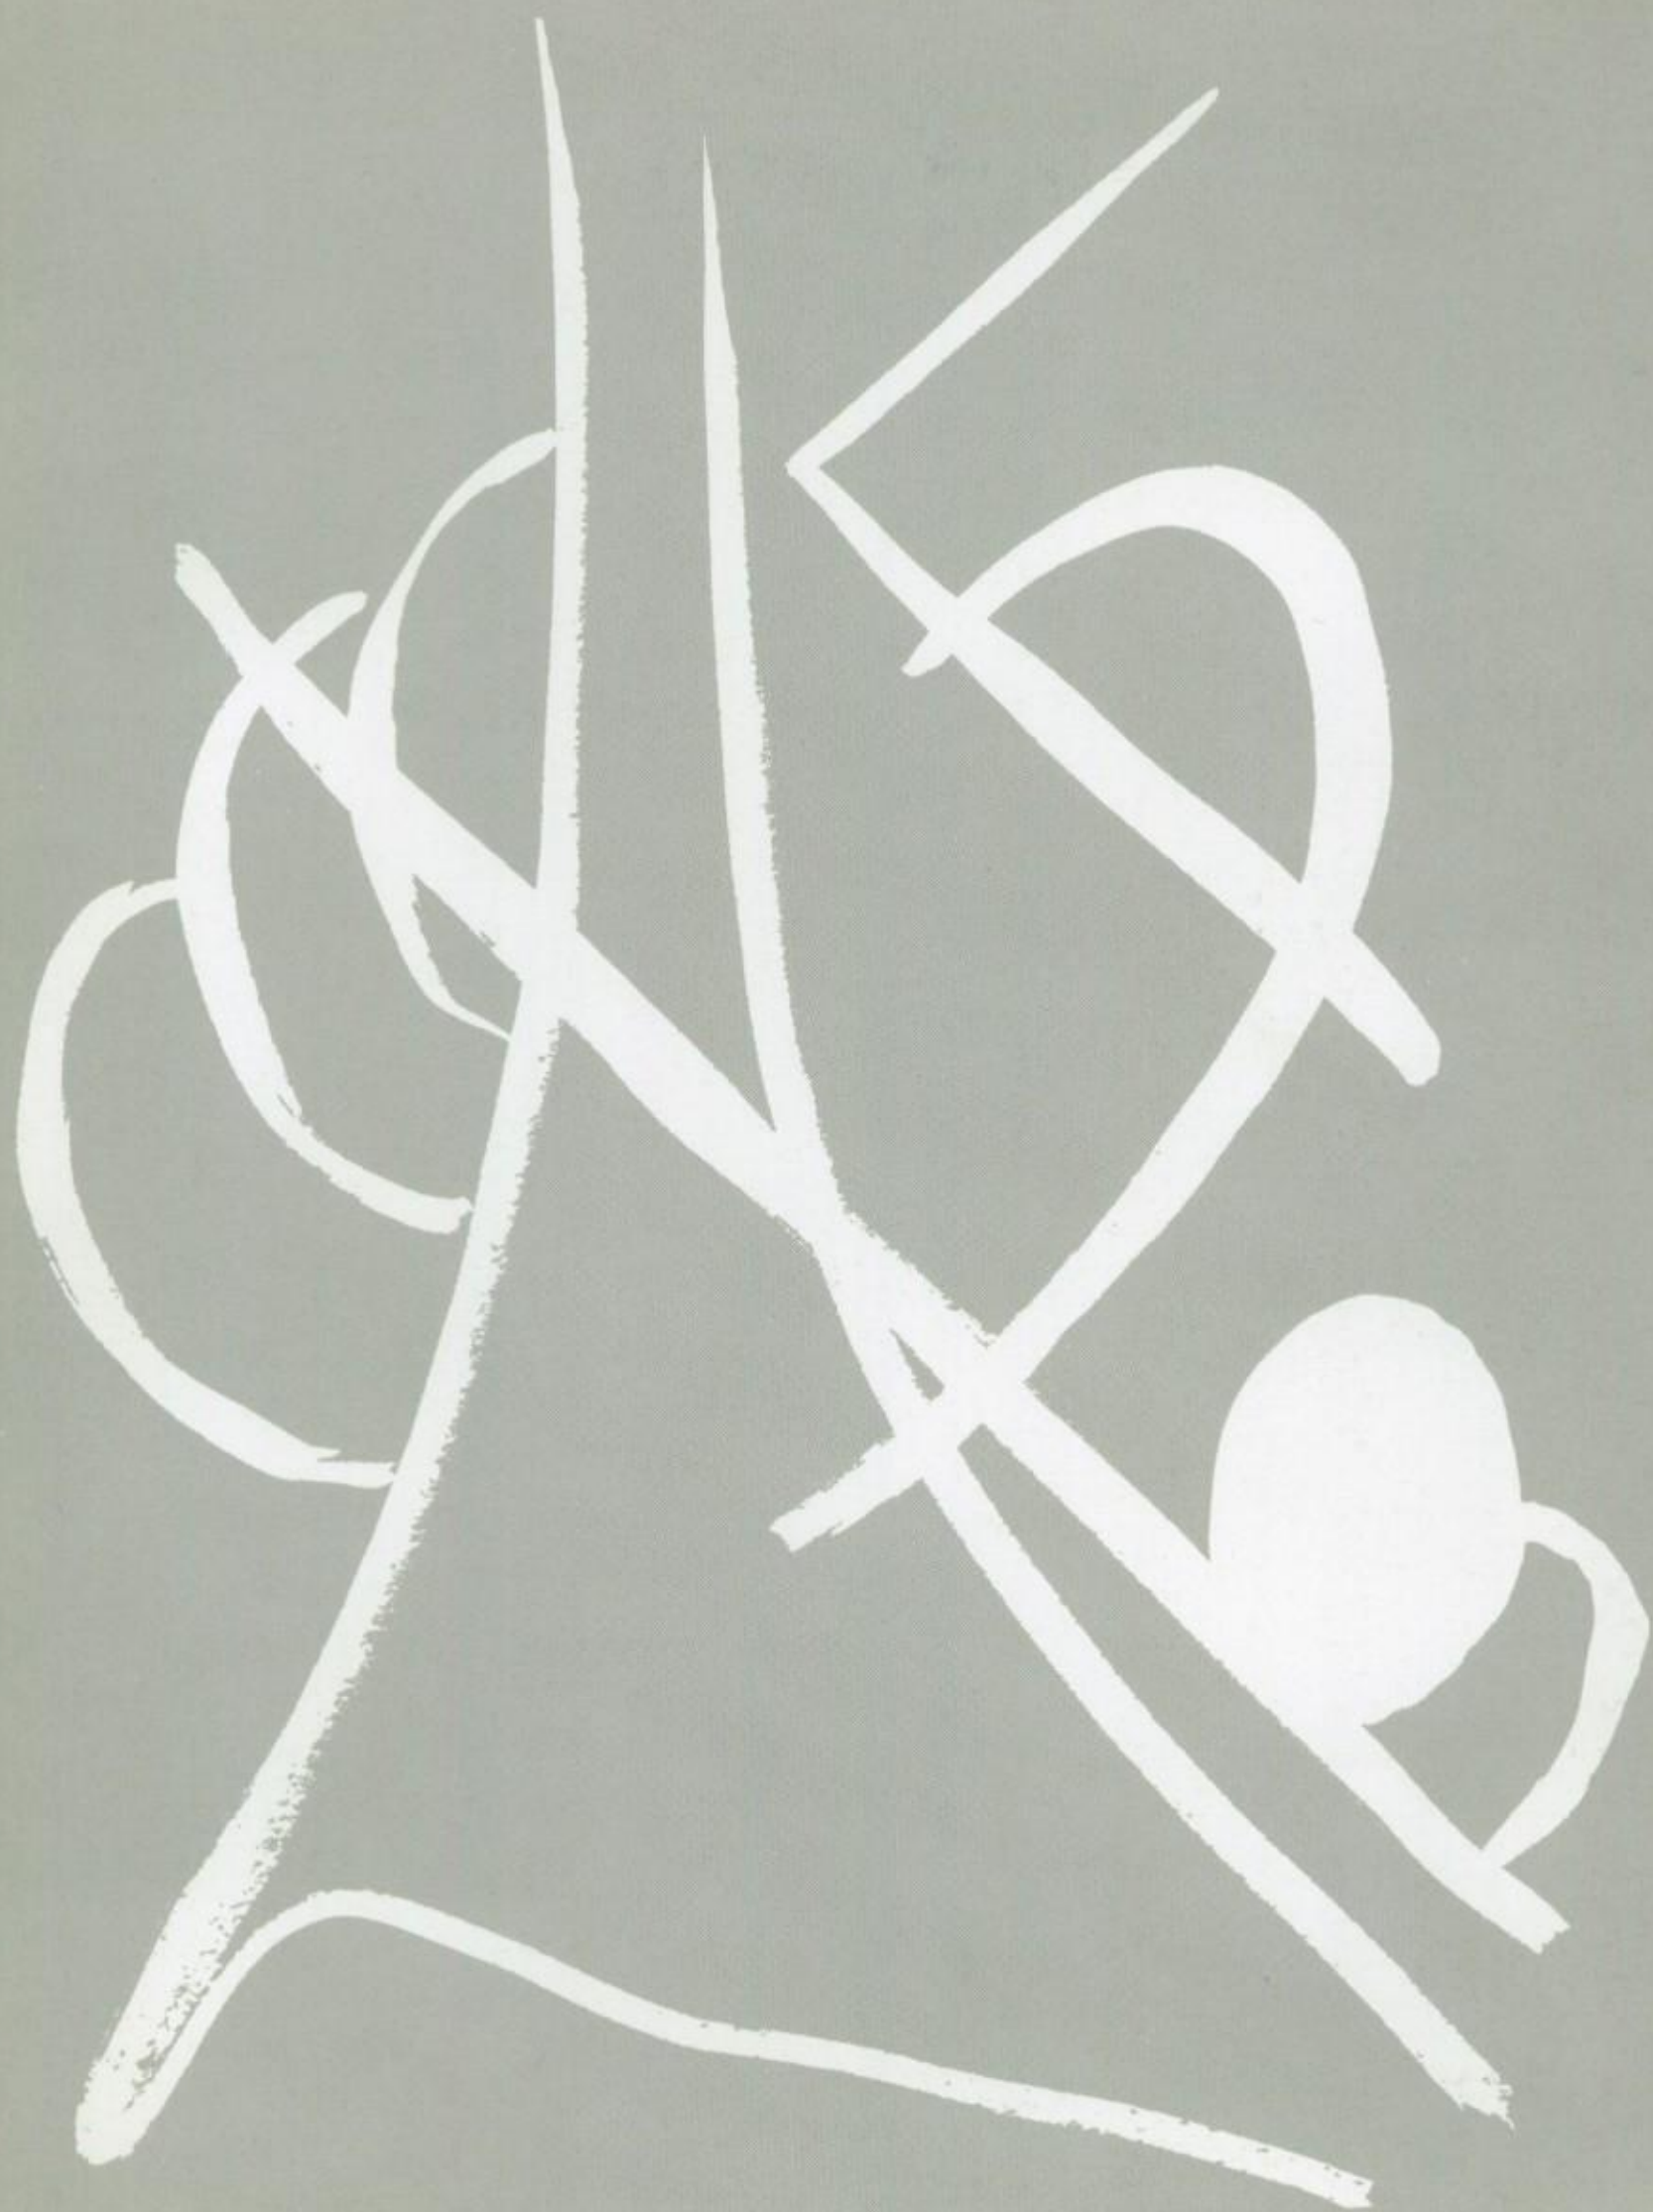

We must have the knowledge that will allow us to understand the changes as they take place—more important, we must have the mental training that will make it possible to adjust to new approaches and new demands. It is this knowledge and this training that are the outcomes of education.

It is very desirable to have the specific skills required by the jobs and needs of the moment but along with this must go the training to meet the demands of the future, whatever they may be.

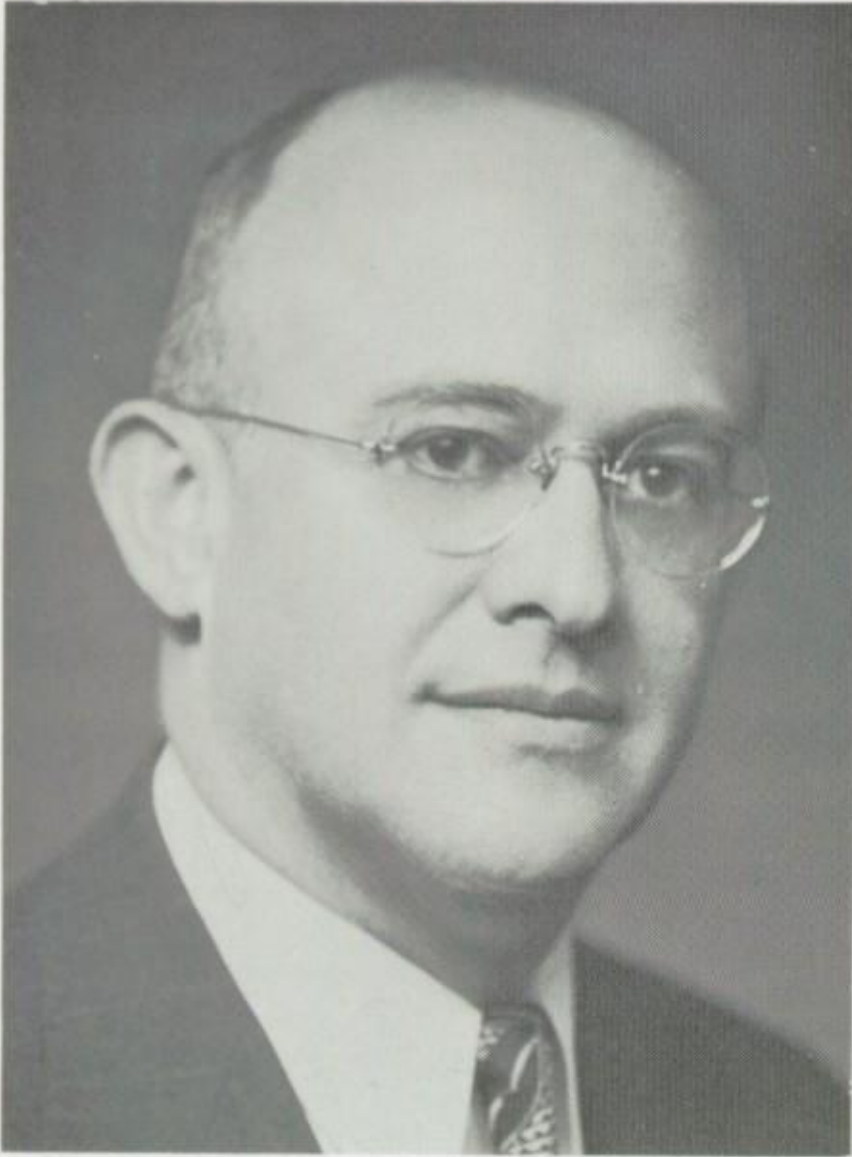

Sincerely,
Henry T. Hillson

BLACKBOARD

The street is washed and broken
A puddle at the curb watches rain clouds recede.
A tainted sky
fades hurriedly.
Lights enter the room
A branch crosses the red reflection

From the glass artificial buildings.
The woman emerges
nursing a toy dog.
At the curb he jumps and pounces haughtily on the puddle.

The red swirls in circles
Then disappears.
by William Chaumont

Literature is the conveyer of ideas. It tries to induce people to think and to convince them of various doctrines of life. Poetry is one of the freest forms of expression. We are presenting a section of poetry. It is as integral a part of school as any academic subject and a very integral part of life.

WINTER AURORA

The tree, webbed and dewy with morning—milkdream air hummingbird winter days of cracked windows frosted in walking.
Inside yourself for the first time.
The tree, reflecting pin drops of sight—
White interwoven
White hummingbird flutter Avenues of Brown wind through,
Inside yourself.

by Alan Sobel

SECURITY

The chair rocks,
Sways, rocks, sways
Empty in the corner
Where the old man had sat.
The baby shoes remain in the closet
The school books in the drawers
The picture of his wife on the mantle
The coffin at the bottom of the grave
Waits for the final cover
From up above.
The neighbors had cried,
The sermon was read,
The band had played,
They didn't know who died.
And the shovel was raised
And lowered the dirt into place:
Peace at last—
Hope in his soul—
Joy in his heart—
Heaven above—Hallelujah
Hallelujah
Hallelujah
Dirt on his face.

FIRST SNOW

Blue Windows
Cast back reflections
From across the courtyard
At night

Streetlamps below
Swarm with moths of winter
That touch the ground With white.

by William Chaumont

OLD SUNSET

Growing weird in the sunset gray trees turn to shadow.
Swinging leaves crack in the wind dying sun melts the snow.
Reflections of fingers on window panes closing wildly in empty grasp are blowing branches, shriveled, rotted attached by a single leafy clasp.

by Joan Marcus

SUNDAY NIGHT

It's late, long journey is over lights and brawling streets jarring subway rattle little boy almost fell asleep then

Afternoon's country railroad station is far behind behind in a whirl of dust and grinding wheels

Little boy lies now on the couch in grandma's livingroom somewhere in a far corner a baby ben ticks on ticks

but if you don't think about it it will go away

Stare at light patterns pirouetting on the ceiling the darkness waits below

in the street
a bus's motor purrs but little boy doesn't hear sleep dances with the ceiling's figures dances away.

by William Chaumont

AFTER THE SNOW

Turn back
Powdery residue
White blotches on lonely ground.
Salt cakes
Of lost kisses
In silence of Remembrance.
Sediments
Of black time
Echo
Empty nothings
While tracings,
Winter ink blots, Search for a meaning.

by Alan Sobel

GRAPE-VINE

They twist and twine, some reach; the vines of chance
All hung with sweet and supple, frosted blue.
The earth their bed will be and trees will dance Away the languid, purple air of rue.

by Ines Martins

BLACK SMOKE

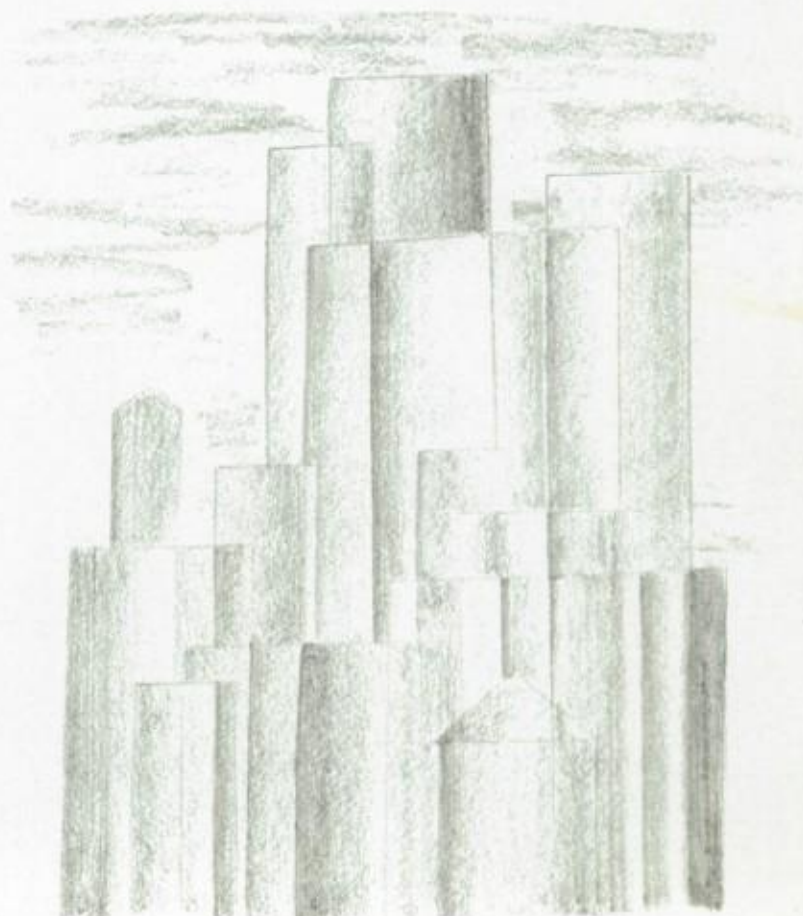

Black smoke
Over the gray city
The wind tries hard
To sweep the city clean.
But, Fails!

by Kristin Captiva

PIGEON CYCLE

Little boy chasing purple pigeons in the sun screaming with gay delight.
Pigeons waddling in shades of fear
Chattering birds take to flight.
Small girl with dainty Planters peanuts left from last night's buffet, Throws them on the cracking pavement
Watches, waits, leaves them lay.
Starved nurses in white nylon pushing baby carriages pressing cracked peanuts to sticky wheels leaving trails of peanuts crumbs in mossy green sidewalk ridges.
Pigeons boldly follow by pecking nuts from pavement cracks fighting squawking angry greed Eating sticky peanut tracks
Cooing noise-quiet Going one by one.
Little boy chasing purple pigeons in the sun.

CHERRY TREE

Every afternoon the Cherry Tree Office reverberated with the sounds of typing, rustling of paper, frantic last minute corrections, and lively debate among the editors. However, beneath this seemingly chaotic state, the staff of our school paper was very successful. ("It's a miracle!—How do we do it?"—they've been heard to exclaim after the distribution of each issue.)

This year's Cherry Tree was an outstanding feature at George Washington, with the faculty assistance of Mrs. Cascione.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT ORGANIZATION

The Student Government Organization may perhaps be considered the most important single unit in George Washington High School. This statement is substantiated by the fact that the S.G.O. forms the actual backbone of our school.

The main theory behind this organization is that student leadership should be encouraged. By enabling the students to regulate and sponsor (under Mr. Rubin's supervision) the affairs of the school, and by allowing them to choose their own officers, valuable experience in leadership was gained.

The purposes of our National Honor Society are to create an enthusiasm for high scholastic achievement, to stimulate the desire to render service at school and at home, to promote worthy leadership, and to encourage the development of character in the students of our school. One way in which this is done is through the Auxilium, which aims to help weaker students of our school in their studies. The faculty advisor is Mrs. Maidens. Kenneth Berger is the student leader.

R E F L E C T I O N S

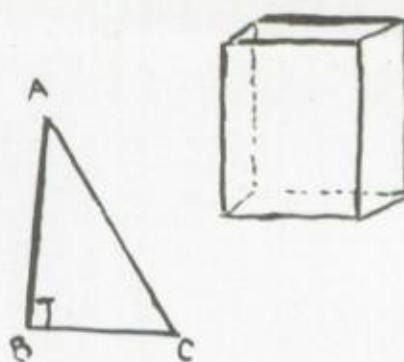

As the end of our last term in George Washington approaches, we are beginning to forget how to solve those equations we learned only a few terms ago. Our minds become hazy when we think about the differences between congruent and similar triangles, and we have already forgotten many of the verb conjugations we learned in our French or Spanish classes. When a lower termmer looks toward us with admiring eyes for some help with his history homework, we turn our noses up and say, 'I've taken the Regents already. I'm above that stuff now.' Or perhaps someone more modest says, 'Well, I would like to help you, but you know history was never my best subject.'

We recall the famous quotation, coined by each generation of students, 'I'm tired!' We cannot forget, of course, those sayings that we associate with our teachers, the most famous ones being "SILENCE" and "May I please have your attention."

This last year has given us much to remember. "Good News" was the biggest single event of the year, with almost all the school taking part in one way or another. And looking at the stage one would think that everyone in the school had a part. A few days before the show this familiar sequence was being echoed throughout the halls: "Did you buy a ticket to 'Good News?' . . . No, I'm in 'Good News.'" And a few days after the show you heard . . . "Which cast did you see?"

Who will not remember the foreign students Eric and Teklu, who had almost all the girls and boys running around after them? Some of the short-answer questions put to them, such as "What do you think of America?" should go down in a book entitled, Familiar Questions at G.W. Then those femmes fatales who compared themselves to French chicks will be remembered for their famous question, "How do American girls compare to French ones?"

Those who went to Stratford for the Shakespearean plays will never forget the "village folk-nicks" we discovered from our school. The wild strumming of guitars with voices raised in songs that would make a radical turn red, followed right in line with a Pete Seeger or Tom Lehrer concert.

Those who worked on school publications will never forget all the deadlines they had to meet. It was only through close cooperation and a lot of luck that the publications were able to reach the students.

Rumor has it that someone in the school is writing a book entitled Thirty Ways of Getting Out of the Lunchroom. Let us hope that its sequel, How Not to Get Caught, appears soon after.

Senior Week too will never be forgotten. Imagine! The climax of four years was reached when we proudly wore our senior hats and walked down the marble staircase.

The senior year has also been marked by many important events. The market for "Stay-A-Wake" pills rose steadily as seniors crammed madly the night before for College Boards and Regents Scholarship Examinations, not to mention just plain ordinary Regents. Once the results of the exam are received, both the credit and the blame are placed on how late you stayed up the night before studying. It seems there is competition between certain students to see who stayed up the latest (2 A.M. is the average time).

Many of us will recall how we ran each day to the mailbox for that "Little Envelope," which contained an acceptance or rejection, life or death.

But in the years to come we will remember, most of all, the many friendships we have made and the teachers who opened many new fields of knowledge to us.
